Man Squirted Ink, Ruined Dresses; Then Tried Fire

JOLIET, Ill., Jan. 2.—John Mulaca, arrested here, has confessed that he is "Jack the Dauber" who since September 28 has kept the women of Joliet in terror. Hundreds of dollars worth of gowns and other evening finery have been ruined by his spraying ink on them in the theater lobbies.

An attempt by the fellow last night to set fire to the dress of Miss Nellie Russell, in a recent theater, resulted in his arrest. He also confessed seven burglaries, the police say. He told the police he used a squirt gun charged with India ink or black paint to mar the dresses of theater-goers.

Sometimes he would vary a program by slashing the dresses with a razor.
